

Indexes Menu

July 8, 2016

The Indexes Menu supports many name indexes which have been added to the database over the years. The menu divides them by category. Since programming is required to add each index, the data structure of an index can be customized to meet that particular index's needs.

Each index represents a separate table in the database. Each name contained in each table is copied to two files: a master Full Name list, which is a single representation of each name that exists, and a Name Cross-Reference file, which takes the Full Name entry, and lists all of the instances where that name can be found in the various indexes. On the website, when people search for a name, what they type is compared to the contents of the Full Name list. When they click on a name, what they then see are the contents of the Name Cross-Reference list. Clicking on the Name Cross-Reference entry then takes the user into the actual index record, where they can see the metadata and download an image if available.

For instance, here is the search field:

The screenshot shows a web browser window displaying the 'Name Indexes' page of the Utah Department of Administrative Services, Division of Archives & Records Service. The browser's address bar shows the URL 'archives.utah.gov/research/indexes/index.html'. The page header includes the Utah.gov logo and navigation links for 'Utah.gov Services' and 'Agencies'. The main navigation bar lists various services: DAS HOME, ARCHIVES, FACILITIES, FINANCE, FLEET, GENERAL SERVICES, PURCHASING, RISK, and RULES. The breadcrumb trail indicates the current location: HOME / RESEARCH / NAME INDEXES. A search bar on the right prompts 'Search the website...'. The main content area is titled 'NAME INDEXES' and features a large image of a book spine labeled 'GENERAL INDEX'. Below the image is a search input field containing 'Christensen, charles', with a dropdown menu showing suggestions: 'Christensen, charles' and 'christensen, charles'. To the right of the search field is a magnifying glass icon. Below the search field, text advises users to see also 'Utah Death Certificate Index' and 'Utah Birth Certificate Index' for advance search options, and to limit their search to one record series by following links in the list below. A section titled 'ORDER A COPY OF THE RECORD' explains that images of some records are available online, but for all other record series, users will need to visit the Research Center to view or order a copy online. It states that orders must be paid for before being sent and that the user will be contacted with an exact cost. Below this is a section titled 'LIST OF INDEXES'. On the right side of the page, a 'SEARCH TIPS' section provides guidance on searching personal and corporate names, using surnames, given names, and middle names, and avoiding wildcard characters. It also lists related guides: Family History, Births, Deaths, Probate records, Incorporations, Naturalizations, Divorces, and Criminal records. At the bottom right, a 'RESEARCH OUR RECORDS' section lists various resources: RESEARCH GUIDES, INVENTORIES, ONLINE CATALOG, AGENCY HISTORIES, NAME INDEXES, DIGITAL ARCHIVES, and BLOG.

SEARCH TIPS

Search personal and corporate names and some subjects.

Use surname, givenname middlename for names.

Partial words or names are fine, but do not use wildcard (*, ?, etc.) characters.

Corporate names and subjects may be searched by any or all words, but they need to be in the same order, so for "Salt Flats," "Salt," "Flats," or "Salt Flats" will work but "Flats Salt" will not

NAME LIST

The following name combinations exist in the index(es). The first 100 hits based upon your search term are listed. Entries may be listed more than once, such as by surname only, or by a combination of surname, given name, and middle name.

To view entries, select a name from the list. To view the next several name combinations, click "List Next" (if you are already at the end of the list this button will not appear). To find a different name, type the name in the "Go To" box and click "Go To". Remember to use the syntax of "surname, givenname middlename" (without the quotes), or search any of those names individually.

To get a new name index incorporated into this online search, some programming takes place, but before the programming takes place, someone needs to do some data entry. The workflow for this data entry includes providing a spreadsheet of data columns desired to be extracted from the record to a volunteer, who looks at the images and types each record out. When completed, a staff member will edit the resulting index prior to it being uploaded into the database. After it is in the database, then staff can make their own editing changes to existing indexes in case they find a typo. Note that the typo version of the name still exists in the Full Name table until that table is rebuilt, which happens as new indexes are added or if someone requests that of an APPX administrator who has access to the database and system processes. While the typo may still exist, the Name Cross-Reference will be empty because there is no longer an index entry that references that version of the name. Well, unless more than one index entry used the same typo, which is common for some misspellings (e.g. Goerge instead of George).

To view indexes from the Index Menu, click Birth and Death Indexes:

This lists all of the birth and death records currently indexed, with the ability to export the index back to a spreadsheet if needed. Note that some date fields that were added to the tables after upload are not present in the export feature, and should be added.

Click State Death Certificate Index: 20842/81448.

Type a name and click OK to bring up the record. Change to Change Mode to edit the entry.

If an alternate spelling needs to be added for this record, just change the name field that might be incorrect, not all three. The top alternate spelling field is for the surname, followed by the first name and middle name. All three do not need to be entered if the only possibly incorrect spelling is only one of those names. The whole name with the new spelling will be indexed and made available in the search engine once the changes are saved.
